

Classroom SEL pack, a week on resilience, ages 3 to 7

Eight Times Up

A five-day plan with everything to print: word cards, a poster, a feelings chart, sequencing cards, activity cards, promise cards, an observation grid, exit tickets and family letters in five languages. The Home Activity Pack is included at the back.

Classroom licence: one teacher may print and copy this pack for their own class and students' families. Please don't share the file or post it online.

The week at a glance

About 20 to 30 minutes a day. Each day stands alone if you only have time for one.

Day	What you do	Print
Day 1 Read and learn the words	Read the story with the pause points. Teach the five words with gestures. Put up the poster and word cards.	Pages 3, 4, 5
Day 2 Feelings	Feelings check-in. Re-read the book and talk about how the characters felt, using the talk questions.	Pages 6, 9
Day 3 Retell	Mix up the sequencing cards and put the story back in order as a class. Retell with “First… Then… At the end…”.	Page 7
Day 4 Make a roly-poly	Put a little weight in the round bottom and decorate it. Tip it over and watch it pop back up. Say ‘Wobble, wobble… POP!’ together.	Page 8
Day 5 What did the fall teach me?	What did the fall teach me?, then promise cards and exit tickets. Send the family letter home.	Pages 8, 10, 14 to 16

Ontario Kindergarten frames

Self-Regulation and Well-Being, Problem Solving and Innovating, Belonging and Contributing, Demonstrating Literacy and Mathematics Behaviours

Materials

The book (or the class screen), a roly-poly toy or a ball of clay with a weight in the bottom, cushions, a chart for counting

Also in this pack

All 12 pages of the Home Activity Pack (from page 17), which you may copy for your class. Book languages: English, French, Spanish, German, Italian.

Day 1: the read-aloud

Before (3 minutes)

Show the cover. Ask: Where is Yuki? What do you think she wants to do? Ask: What is something that was hard at first but you can do now? How many tries did it take? Take a few answers. Teach the refrain: rock side to side, then pop up tall. ‘Wobble, wobble… POP!’

During: stop, ask, listen (10 minutes)

Spread	What happens	Ask	Listen for
2	Yuki watches the big goats on Cloud Rock.	What does Yuki dream of doing?	climbing to the top, watching the sunrise
4	Yuki slips and says ‘Maybe I’m just not a climber.’	How does Yuki feel after her first fall?	sad, embarrassed, hot cheeks, wants to give up
5	Yuki says ‘Shiny rocks are slippery.’	What did the first fall teach her?	shiny rocks slip, step on crunchy snow
6	After four falls, Yuki rests.	Why do you think she rested before trying again?	she was tired, resting helps you think
8	Yuki sits beside Hina, who is crying.	How does Yuki help Hina?	she sits with her, tells her what she learned
9	Fall number seven, the biggest of all.	What do you think Yuki will do now?	get up, try again, use what she learned
10	The toy pops up; Yuki leans in to the mountain.	What helped Yuki get up this time?	the toy, Taro, everything she learned
12	Yuki still falls sometimes, and laughs.	Why does Yuki laugh now when she falls?	she knows falling teaches her, it is okay

Spread numbers match the reader on the class screen. You don’t need every stop.

Handle with care: Getting up again doesn’t mean pushing through pain. Nobody is hurt in the story, and Yuki always lands in soft snow. More notes on the “For every child” page.

Word wall cards

Cut out and add to your word wall. Teach each word with its gesture.

climb

to go up using your hands and feet

Do it: move your hands up like a ladder slip

to slide and lose your balance

Do it: slide one hand off the other practise

to do something again and again to get better

Do it: tap your fist three times rest

to stop and be still for a while

Do it: lay your head on your hands

sunrise

when the sun comes up in the morning

Do it: raise one hand slowly like the sun

Wobble, wobble... POP!

Say it together whenever it comes up in the story.

Sequencing cards

Cut apart for the pocket chart. The four scenes come from the start, two middles and the end of the book, mixed up. Put them in order and retell. Children can color them too.

Answer key, top left to bottom right: 3, 1, 4, 2.

Activity cards

Cut out and keep with the book. Use one on Day 4 and one on Day 5, or any time.

Make a roly-poly

20 minutes, Individual, Materials: Half a plastic egg or a paper cup, play dough or a coin, paper and crayons

Put a little weight in the round bottom and decorate it. Tip it over and watch it pop back up. Say ‘Wobble, wobble… POP!’ together.

What did the fall teach me?

10 minutes, Whole class, Materials: Chart paper

Make a chart like Yuki’s list. Children share one thing they tried, what went wrong, and what it taught them. Write each lesson as a short tip.

Cloud Rock climb

15 minutes, Small groups, Materials: Cushions, a low bench, a soft mat

Set up a safe obstacle path. Children try it, notice what made them wobble, and try again using a ‘tip’ (slow steps, small jumps). Celebrate every try, not only reaching the end.

Science and nature corner

Japanese serows are goat-like animals found only in the mountain forests of Japan, and they are protected there as a special natural treasure. Snow monkeys, or Japanese macaques, live farther north than any other monkey, and some groups bathe in warm hot springs in winter. Rock ptarmigans are birds that turn white in winter; in Japan they live only in the high mountains and are endangered.

Talk together

Use after reading, at circle time or with a small group. Accept every honest answer.

1. How did Yuki feel after her first fall?

Look for: Sad, hot-cheeked, unsure. Accept any feeling word.

2. What did each fall teach her?

Look for: Shiny rocks slip, little stones roll, rushing trips, big jumps miss.

3. Why do you think she rested before trying again?

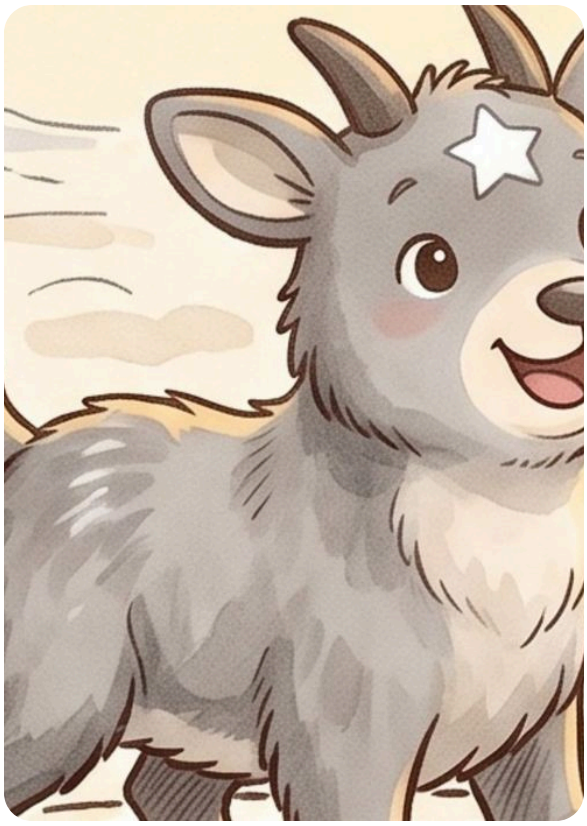

Look for: She was tired, and resting gave her time to think.

4. How did Yuki help Hina?

Look for: She sat with her and shared what she had learned.

5. What is something you are learning that makes you fall sometimes?

Look for: Any answer: riding a bike, writing a name, tying shoes.

Say it together

Wobble, wobble... POP!

The big idea: Every fall teaches you something, and getting up again is up to you. Resting is allowed.

Science and place corner

The book's mountains have no name, so we picked one valley where serows, snow monkeys and rock ptarmigans all live: Kamikochi, in Chubusangaku National Park.

Japanese serow

Serows were hunted almost to extinction by the mid-1900s. Japan made them a Special Natural Monument in 1955, and now there are many again.

Japanese macaque (snow monkey)

In Kamikochi's snowy winters, scientists filmed snow monkeys turning over rocks in warm spring-fed streams to catch fish and water insects. It was the first proof of Japanese macaques eating river fish!

Japanese rock ptarmigan (raichō) chick

Many alpine plants are a bit poisonous. Chicks eat their mother's droppings soon after hatching to get the special tummy bacteria that help them digest them.

Kamikochi, the Japanese Alps

Yuki: Real serows are great climbers on steep, snowy slopes. But they live alone, not in a herd of big goats racing to Cloud Rock, and Yuki's white star is our artist's idea.

Taro: Real snow monkeys do play with stones and snow. But the little red roly-poly toy is from Japanese folk tradition, not the forest, and a real macaque has a short stumpy tail.

Hina: Real raichō chicks stay close to their mother all summer. Hina is a little white chick in winter snow, but real chicks hatch in late June and are brown and mottled for their first months.

For every child

English and French learners

Watch the read-aloud first. Count the falls together on fingers (one to eight). The refrain has a big action, so everyone can join in.

Children who need more support

Use three stops (spreads 4, 6 and 11). Show the roly-poly toy before reading so the idea of ‘popping back up’ is clear.

Children who get frustrated easily

Practise saying ‘What did that teach me?’ after small mistakes. Remind them that Yuki rested, and resting is allowed.

Handle with care

Getting up again doesn’t mean pushing through pain. Nobody is hurt in the story, and Yuki always lands in soft snow.

Some children feel big frustration when they fail. Keep the focus on what each try teaches, not on ‘never giving up’.

The saying and the dolls come from Japan. Share them simply, and invite Japanese families to bring a Daruma or tell the saying in Japanese if they wish.

Where this value comes from

In Japan there is an old saying, nana korobi ya oki: fall down seven times, get up eight. Little roly-poly dolls that always pop back up, like the Daruma and the okiagari-koboshi of Aizu, have carried that saying for hundreds of years.

Family letters

Cut apart and send home in the family's language, or copy the text into your newsletter.

English

Today we read Eight Times Up, a story about falling and getting up again. Yuki the mountain goat falls seven times on her way to the top, and each fall teaches her something new. At home, when something goes wrong, ask your child, 'What did that teach you?' and remind them that resting is allowed too. You can watch or read the story together for free at doubleadventure.ca.

Français

Aujourd'hui, nous avons lu Huit fois debout, une histoire sur les chutes et l'art de se relever. Yuki la chèvre tombe sept fois en montant vers le sommet, et chaque chute lui apprend quelque chose. À la maison, quand quelque chose ne marche pas, demandez à votre enfant : « Qu'est-ce que ça t'a appris ? » et rappelez-lui qu'on a aussi le droit de se reposer. Vous pouvez lire ou regarder l'histoire gratuitement sur doubleadventure.ca.

Español

Hoy leímos un cuento sobre caerse y volver a levantarse. Yuki, la cabrita de montaña, se cae siete veces camino a la cima, y cada caída le enseña algo nuevo. En casa, cuando algo salga mal, pregunte a su hijo o hija: «¿Qué te enseñó eso?» y recuérdele que también está bien descansar. Pueden leer o ver el cuento gratis en doubleadventure.ca.

Heute haben wir eine Geschichte über das Hinfallen und Wiederaufstehen gelesen. Die kleine Bergziege Yuki fällt auf dem Weg zum Gipfel sieben Mal hin, und jeder Sturz bringt ihr etwas Neues bei. Wenn zu Hause etwas schiefgeht, fragen Sie Ihr Kind: ‚Was hast du dabei gelernt?' und erinnern Sie es daran, dass Ausruhen auch erlaubt ist. Die Geschichte gibt es kostenlos auf doubleadventure.ca.

Italiano

Oggi abbiamo letto una storia sul cadere e rialzarsi. Yuki, la capretta di montagna, cade sette volte salendo verso la cima, e ogni caduta le insegna qualcosa di nuovo. A casa, quando qualcosa va storto, chiedete a vostro figlio o vostra figlia: «Che cosa ti ha insegnato?» e ricordategli che anche riposarsi va bene. Home activity pack, ages 3 to 7

Eight Times Up

Twelve pages to color, cut, trace, make and talk about, all from the story.
The value in this book: resilience.

For use in your own home. Please don't share the file or post it online.

For grown-ups

Read the story first, then pick one page a day. Each page takes 10 to 20 minutes. There are no wrong answers.

The big idea

Every fall teaches you something, and getting up again is up to you. Resting is allowed.

Say it together

Wobble, wobble…
POP!

Five words from the story

Word	What it means	Do it
climb	to go up using your hands and feet	move your hands up like a ladder slip	to slide and lose your balance	slide one hand off the other
practise	to do something again and again to get better	tap your fist three times
rest	to stop and be still for a while	lay your head on your hands
sunrise	when the sun comes up in the morning	raise one hand slowly like the sun

A gentle note

Getting up again doesn't mean pushing through pain. Nobody is hurt in the story, and Yuki always lands in soft snow.

Some children feel big frustration when they fail. Keep the focus on what each try teaches, not on 'never giving up'.

What you need

Crayons, a pencil, scissors, glue or tape, a few craft sticks or straws, and the book (or read it free on screen at doubleadventure.ca).

© A² Publishing, doubleadventure.ca

Meet the friends

Cut out each card along the dashed line. Tape a craft stick on the back and you have a puppet. Act out the story!

Yuki

Japanese serow

A young climber who learns from every fall

Taro

Japanese macaque (snow monkey)

Yuki's cheerful friend with the pop-up toy

Hina

Japanese rock ptarmigan (raichō) chick

The littlest climber who learns from Yuki

How did they feel?

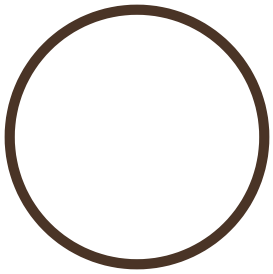

Feelings change during a story. Talk about each moment, then draw how the character felt.

Moment 1

Yuki watches the big goats on Cloud Rock.

Draw the face. Then circle a word.

sad scared worried happy brave proud calm

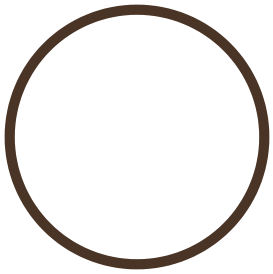

Moment 2

Yuki sits beside Hina, who is crying.

Draw the face. Then circle a word.

sad scared worried happy brave proud calm

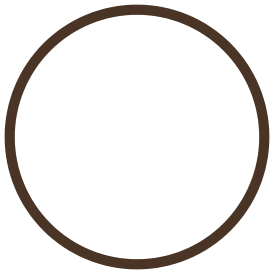

Moment 3

Yuki still falls sometimes, and laughs.

Draw the face. Then circle a word.

sad scared worried happy brave proud calm

Draw your own story

Yuki showed resilience. Draw a time when you showed resilience too, or a time you could.

Tell a grown-up: What happened? How did you feel? How did the other person feel?

© A² Publishing, doubleadventure.ca

Make and do

Pick one to try today. Each one comes straight from the story.

Make a roly-poly

You need: Half a plastic egg or a paper cup, play dough or a coin, paper and crayons

Put a little weight in the round bottom and decorate it. Tip it over and watch it pop back up. Say ‘Wobble, wobble… POP!’ together.

Fall and rise

Try balancing on one foot. Wobble? Fall? Count how many times you get back up!

Make a roly-poly

Put a little clay in the bottom of a plastic egg. Push it over. Does it pop back up?

Snow camouflage

Draw a ptarmigan on white paper in winter colours, and another on brown paper in summer colours. Which hides best?

Draw what you made

The real animals

The animals in Eight Times Up are based on real ones. Here is something true about each of them.

Yuki

Japanese serow

Serows were hunted almost to extinction by the mid-1900s. Japan made them a Special Natural Monument in 1955, and now there are many again.

Taro

Japanese macaque (snow monkey)

In Kamikochi's snowy winters, scientists filmed snow monkeys turning over rocks in warm spring-fed streams to catch fish and water insects. It was the first proof of Japanese macaques eating river fish!

Hina

Japanese rock ptarmigan (raichō) chick

Many alpine plants are a bit poisonous. Chicks eat their mother's droppings soon after hatching to get the special tummy bacteria that help them digest them.

Story or real?

Real serows are great climbers on steep, snowy slopes. But they live alone, not in a herd of big goats racing to Cloud Rock, and Yuki's white star is our artist's idea.

Where they really live

The book's mountains have no name, so we picked one valley where serows, snow monkeys and rock ptarmigans all live: Kamikochi, in Chubusangaku National Park.
